

Forthcoming Monthly Speaker Meetings

The speaker's talk is followed by tea, coffee and cakes. Visitors are very welcome and may attend two meetings without charge or obligation to join. Tuesday 10th February – John Todd

“Our NHS Today”

John studied Physics at university and went on to study applications of physics in medicine, which covers radiation safety, nuclear medicine, calibration of equipment, IT, electronics and imaging. He was appointed head of department at Nottingham City Hospital in 1978 and by the late 1980s had taken on wider management responsibilities including large IT projects. In 1991 he was appointed a Director at Leicester Royal Infirmary, responsible for information, medical records and hitting all the targets aimed at reducing waiting times for patients, and for one year he managed the Glenfield Hospital. He also served on the NHS/BMA committee developing rules for accessing data held in NHS. When he was trained at BBC Nottingham to cope with the media, he was told he had the face, voice and demeanour to deal well with bad news!

The NHS has always been under pressure to meet the demand and needs of patients but over the past 15 years waiting times, and other major issues have increased. This talk explores the reasons, including; population growth, patient expectations, clinical developments and pressures on services in the community, including GP practices. These pressures have been apparent and known for many years, but correcting them is difficult to put into practice. John explains the issues, his big concerns, looks at actions being considered to bring about improvements, and shows how we stand with other comparable countries in terms of facilities and survival from cancer.

University Interest Group

What is the University Interest Group? Do come and join us!

No, it's not a bunch of highly educated u3a members soaking up more knowledge. We arrange talks at local universities by academics, eminent in their fields, who are adept at explaining their amazing research in layman's terms. There is no regular commitment, you just respond to my emails detailing forthcoming talks if you're interested. The talks, typically lasting around 40 minutes, are usually followed by a tour or demonstration in the laboratories or facilities.

For those interested we are also sometimes asked to participate in research projects. About 4 or 5 talks and tours are arranged annually with each lasting a couple of hours. Some memorable talks/subjects have included: the world leading gps (global positioning systems) labs with the train track on the roof; how muscles age as we do and what to do about it; and more recently how we deal with Artificial Intelligence.

Do sign up and join us. You just need to send an email to Trevor Wright – tgawright@icloud.com. There is no obligation, you will then receive emails from me inviting you to events.

– Trevor Wright, Group Coordinator
